

Tattoos gain popularity in Cuba

12 March 2016

In Cuba, tattoos used to be the domain of prostitutes, sailors and prisoners - but now body art is becoming more popular.

But there's only one licensed shop on the island. It is becoming popular with tourists as well.

BBC's Will Grant talked with the owner as well as some of Havana's recently inked.

Filmed and edited by Alberto Moreno

<http://www.bbc.com/news/world-latin-america-35777899>